In barrel racing, the contestant and her horse enter the arena at full speed. As they start the pattern, the horse and rider trigger an electronic eye that starts the clock. Then the racer rides a cloverleaf pattern around three barrels positioned in the arena, and sprints back out of the arena, tripping the eye and stopping the clock as she leaves. The contestant can touch or even move the barrels, but receives a five second penalty for each barrel that is overturned. With the margin of victory measured in hundredths of seconds, knocking over one barrel spells disaster.

Breakaway roping is a rodeo event that features a calf and one mounted cowgirl. The calves are moved through narrow pathways leading to a chute with spring-loaded doors. A 10-foot rope is fastened around the calf's neck which is used to ensure that the calf gets a head start. On one side of the chute will be the breakaway roper who will attempt to rope the calf.

The breakaway roper is behind a taut rope fastened with an easily broken string which is fastened to the rope on the calf. When the roper is ready she calls for the calf and the chute man trips a lever opening the doors. The suddenly freed calf breaks out running. When the calf reaches the end of his rope, it pops off and simultaneously releases the barrier for the roper. The roper must throw the rope in a loop around the calf's neck.

Once the rope is around the calf's neck, the roper signals the horse to stop suddenly. The rope is tied to the saddle horn with a string. When the calf hits the end of the rope, the rope is pulled tight and the string breaks. The breaking of the string marks the end of the run. The fastest run wins.

Bull Riding

Unlike the other rough stock contestants, bull riders are not required to spur. No wonder. It's usually impressive enough just to remain seated for eight seconds on an animal that may weigh more than a ton and is as quick as he is big. Upper body control and strong legs are essential to riding bulls. The rider tries to remain forward to "over his hand" at all times. Leaning back could cause him to be whipped forward when the bull bucks. Judges watch for good body position and other factors, including use of the free arm and spurring action. Although not required, spurring will add points to a rider's score.

As in all the riding events, half of the score in bull riding is determined by the contestant's performance and the other half is based on the animal's efforts. A bull rider will be disqualified for touching the animal, himself or his equipment with his free hand or bucking off.

Calf Roping

Like bronc riding, tie down roping is an event born on the ranches of the Old West. Sick calves were roped and tied down for medical treatment. Today, success in tie down roping depends largely on the teamwork between a cowboy and his horse. After the calf is given a head start, horse and rider give chase. The contestant ropes the calf, then dismounts and runs to the animal. After catching and flanking the calf, the cowboy ties any three of the animal's legs together using a "pigging string" he carries in his teeth until needed. If the calf is not standing when the contestant reaches it, the cowboy must allow the animal to stand. When the cowboy completes his tie, he throws his hand in the air as a signal to judge. He then remounts and allows the rope to become slack. The run is declared invalid if the calf kicks free within six seconds. As with any timed event, a 10 second penalty is added if the roper does not allow the calf the proper head start-this is known as "breaking the barrier."

Wrestling a steer requires more than brute strength. The successful steer wrestler, or bulldogger, is strong, to be sure, but he also understands the principles of leverage. The steer wrestler on horseback starts behind a barrier, and begins his chase after the steer has been given a head start. If the bulldogger leaves too soon and breaks the barrier, he receives a 10 second penalty. The steer wrestler is assisted by a hazer, another cowboy on horseback tasked with keeping the steer running in a straight line. When the bulldogger's horse pulls even with the steer, he eases down the right side of the horse and reaches for the steer's horn and pushes down with his left hand in an effort to tip the steer over. After the catch, the steer wrestler must either bring the steer to a stop or change the direction of the animal's body before the throw or is disqualified. The clock stops when the steer is on his side with all four legs pointing the same direction.

A SOLDIER'S CHILD BIRTHDAY FOUNDATION

A non-profit 501 (c) 3 organization

Our Mission:

Our mission is to serve the children of fallen military personnel who have given their lives in combat while defending the United States of America.

It is our objective to communicate through "A Soldiers Child" to the children left behind, that the memory of their parent will not fade away. We want them to know that for sacrifice's their families have made, we stand united as a grateful Nation.

It is with humility of heart that we aim to honor the memory of the parent by giving a meaningful gift on the birthday of their son/daughter.

Our goal is to reach every Soldiers Child, to adopt that child into the foundation until they are of adult age. We can't substitute the bond and love of the parent that is forever gone, but with your help we can show them that we really do care.

TEAM ROPING

Team roping is unique in that two cowboys work together for a shared time. The first cowboy, known as the "header", ropes the steer either by the horns, around the neck, or "half head" which is one horn and the neck. After this catch is made, the header wraps his rope around the saddle horn, commonly known as dallying, and turns the steer in a wide arc to the left.

The second cowboy known as the "heeler". He trails along beside the steer until the header turns the steer, then moves in behind the steer and attempts to rope the back feet. If he only manages one hind foot, the team receives a five-second penalty. The time is stopped when both cowboy's horses are facing each other.

January 2009

Jump on board to a NEW LOCATION!

Studio Z. has outgrown its Smyrna location. Steve and his staff are excited about moving to a new studio in MURFREESBORO, a hidden treasure, just minutes from Medical Center Parkway with endless possibilities. The new location is equipped with five acres of southern comfort and old-fashioned charm; it boasts beautiful grounds and gardens, a creek, an old barn, fabulous sugar maple trees, and an adorable farmhouse. Studio Z. will still offer great seasonal specials and more. When asked about the upcoming changes, Steve Zavisa replied, "Murfreesboro is where I was born and raised; moving my studio to Murfreesboro will put us in the heart of Rutherford County. It doesn't get any better than that!"

Thank you to Mr. Harry Gill, Mrs. Shirley Bell, Special Education teachers, social workers and educational assistants with the Rutherford County Schools who allowed us to host this special rodeo performance for our "special kids", Kindergarten through 12th grade!

A big thank you to the many Rutherford County School Bus Drivers/Owners who donated their time and buses for transportation. Without you this could not be possible!

And to Sheriff Truman Jones, thank you for your continued support of the SRO program and all that it stands for. School safety has always been a priority with you and your department!
